Monday, October 21, 3:30 pm EDT (online)

Join us for an insightful online session with Rabbi Mike Uram, Chief Jewish Learning Officer for Jewish Federations of North America, as he explores the most current demographic trends shaping the future of the Jewish community. In this one-hour event, Rabbi Uram will analyze the evolving landscape of the next generation of Jewish adults, discussing how these trends impact the future of Jewish organizations. Drawing on his extensive experience, including roles as the former Chief Vision and Education Officer for Pardes North America and Executive Director at Penn Hillel, Rabbi Uram will provide a nuanced understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing Jewish institutions. He will highlight key factors such as shifting religious affiliations and engagement levels among millennials, offering valuable insights into how Jewish organizations can adapt and innovate to remain relevant and impactful. This session is an essential opportunity for anyone interested in the future of Jewish life to understand the forces shaping our community's future, with a Q&A segment to engage directly with Rabbi Uram. Rabbi Mike Uram is the first ever Chief Jewish Learning Officer for Jewish Federations of North America. Previously, he served as the Chief Vision and Education Officer for Pardes North America building a new platform for Jewish education in North America. Before that, Mike led Penn Hillel as the Executive Director and Campus Rabbi for over 16 years. Recently, Mike also co-authored and designed a new educational framework for Birthright Israel. Mike has spent time in all the different denominations and is most passionate about breaking down the personal, spiritual, and intellectual boundaries that prevent people from having full self-actualized Jewish identities. #### History & Memory – Key Themes in the Jewish Experience

Part 4 - Tuesday, October 22, 1:00 pm EDT (online) Part 5 - Tuesday, October 29, 1:00 pm EDT (online)

This five-part series offers an insightful exploration into the pivotal themes that have shaped Jewish history and identity. Instead of attempting to cover 3,000 years of Jewish existence across the globe, this series focuses on the enduring tension between 'history' and 'memory'—a critical lens through which we will examine the Jewish people's journey from their ancient origins to the present day. Each session delves into a core theme: the nature of the Jews as a people, the centrality of Torah, the challenges and opportunities of Diaspora life, the impact of sectarianism and the birth of Christianity, and the evolution of Rabbinic Judaism through the Oral Torah. This series is designed for both newcomers to Jewish history and those familiar with its basic narratives, offering a deeper understanding of its significance and relevance for Jews today.

Session 4: Synagogue - Jewish Sectarianism & the Birth of Christianity – This session explores the rise of Jewish sectarianism during the Second Temple period and its role in the birth of Christianity. We will investigate the diverse religious movements within Judaism at that time and how these divisions contributed to the development of early Christian thought and practice.

Session 5: Midrash - 'Oral Torah' & the Interpretive Tradition of Rabbinic Judaism – In our final session, we will focus on the Oral Torah and the rich interpretive tradition of Rabbinic Judaism. We will explore the development of Midrash, the role of the Rabbis in shaping Jewish law and theology, and how these interpretations have kept Judaism dynamic and relevant through the centuries.

David E. Kaufman, our presenter for five sessions, was born and bred in Brooklyn, New York, and educated at the Bialik Hebrew Day School and the Yeshiva of Flatbush High School. He holds degrees from Columbia College, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Brandeis University. A PhD in American Jewish History, he has taught at numerous colleges such as CUNY, Brown University, University of Massachusetts/Amherst, Hebrew Union College/Los Angeles and Hofstra University. In addition to numerous articles on the social, religious, and architectural history of the American synagogue, Dr. Kaufman has authored two books: Shul with a Pool: The Synagogue-Center in American Jewish History (Brandeis, 1999) and Jewhooing the Sixties: American Celebrity and Jewish Identity (Brandeis, 2012). David currently lives on the Upper West Side and is engaged in public education, researching, writing, and teaching the history of the New York Jewish community. https://us06web.zoom.us/meeting/register/tZwofuytpjsrGNEPzHp-gppcylbKKcWrnyHD#/registration
